

girl power

Bria' Sanders

Her golf credentials are intimidating: She's been playing since age three, has been selected to the Tiger Woods Foundation junior team five consecutive times, and is ranked number one (among boys and girls) on the Tennessee Golf Association Junior tour. But a few minutes with Bria' Sanders makes it clear she's also a typical 11-year-old – singing her favorite Cheetah Girls song, telling how she and her friends used golf clubs as microphones at a recent sleepover. Her observation of Tiger Woods? "He has very broad shoulders." The only thing that makes her nervous? "People that are better than me at golf."

"My goal is to be really good so I can travel. I want to go to Paris ... my mom and dad have been to Paris."

Photo by Lisa Waddell Buser